THE MARKETS. A Bull Market for Stocks. New Yonk, (Saturday, 6 p. m.), Oct. 31 .- Today's stock market was somewhat monotonous inasmuch as nothing came in the way of out-side news to effect values. Whatever was done in the way of manipulating prices was pretty much due to board room operators. Neverthe less, the history of the day showed that these same board room operators, as well as the "tape" contingent that speculates upon their "tape" contingent that speculates upon their beek and call, were rauged to a man upon the bull side of the market. Otherwise, there would not have been the sprightly advance which occurred to-day.

Without any particular reason except that the course of prices is naturally upward, the entire list headed in the direction of higher figures.

The stocks that most pertinaciously pushed their way toward higher figures were Central and Hudson, Western Union, Lake Shore, St. Paul, Louisville and Nashville, Chicago, St.

their way toward higher figures were Central and Hudson, Western Union, Lake Shore, St. Paul, Louiswille and Nashville, Chicago, St. Louis and Pittsburg. Union Pacific, and Delaware and Lackawanna.

Not to be tied down to eighths or quarters, the advance in these stocks may correctly be stated as having ranged anywhere from 1/5 to 254 per cent, and by far the best part of it was held at the close. Such being the fact, it is not extrawagant to say that though the market was a quiet one it was nevertheless an out an out bull one. The market closed with much strength, but fractionally below the best figures of the day.

Money on call to borrowers on stock collateral was 2 to 3 per cent. Government bond sales on call at the stock exchange were: $10,000.45 \text{ registered, at $135/\text{ st}}$; $10,000 \text{ do. at $123/\text{ st}}$; $10,000 \text{ do. on the continuation of the day and fairly steady. To-Day in History. November 2. (1755.)

(1755.)

No state, however proud it be, From peril and mischance is free. Shall stuth of ill stack the fair. Now born, sweet Marie Antoinette? Around her all of rich and rare, Comes Misery, the robbar, yet? And can it be that, poor and low, She shall dessend and weeping go, Unpitted, through the dark? A throne Hain steps—a sigh, a tear, a grean—A king, a queen is down. So set The gayest life gay France had known; so periahed Marie Antoinette!

(1795.)

Born, James K. Polk. That's little. In it Only this: A child each minute Comes to earth. Some go away, Children still. Of those who stay Children still. Of those who stay
Many seem of small regard;
Find, or make, their pathway hard,
Thorny, perilous, and dark,
Then expire, an idle spark.
Others yet—though few are these—
Please themselves, all round them please—
Yea, far more, improve, enlighten;
What they touch their touch will brighten;
Words of theirs like gems will be;
Fate is in them, prophecy; Words of theirs lies gens with ce-Fate is in them, prophecy! So with him whose birth we greek, Destined in his manly hour Still to rise—the sovereign seat His at last, his country's power. Well he used it; state affairs. Dreamless of the future cares, Plawed, a shining stream—Content Smiling whereso'er it went.
